I am here as a grandmother, nurse, social scientist, and academician with 30 years in long term care training and counseling.

Research documents the following benefits of music to youth:

1. Relieve stress, brings comfort
2. Mitigates hypertension,
3. Motivates exercise
4. More constructive use of time
5. Socialization opportunities
6. Enhances self-discipline/increased attention span
7. Reduction in the risk for juvenile delinquency
8. Supplemental study augments curricula and brings relevance to history
9. Concerts teach listening etiquette
10. Increases SAT scores and academic performance in classrooms
11. Is catalyst to life long learning supported by cointelss testimonials
12. During my 30 years in long term care, specific to Alzheimer's care, I saw first hand and read the science behind music therapy...its remarkable benefits. I became fully convinced that this early exposure to music lays a foundation, developes "our musical memory"its positive memories, associations and comforts on which to draw in later life...without these deeply instilled memories, we cannot reap the benefits.
13. In this belief, I donate generously to the youth programs of HSO, write grants on their behalf pro bono, and urge your appropriations to HSO benefit

Sincerely,

Liz Kendall, 536 Hagen Dr., Hendersonville, NC 28739
