HELP SHAPE THE FUTURE OF THE LIBRARY

The Henderson County Library System has recently launched a strategic planning process to guide its direction over the next three years. This process will take about 6-months to complete and will ensure that 2020-2023 library services align with community needs.

A key component of this process will be a series of community listening sessions designed to gather public input regarding people's aspirations for themselves and their community and determine how the library might help these aspirations become realized.

Whether you're a regular library user, infrequent visitor, or have never visited the library, we would like to hear from you. Your voice matters and will help determine the library's future strategic directions.

- Trina Rushing,
Library Director

Christian Zawojski, Branch Library Assistant

Christian Zawojski is our new full-time Library Assistant that splits his time between the Green River and Etowah branches. Christian moved to Brevard two years ago, joined the Henderson County Public Library this past June, and has enjoyed meeting people in these communities and learning more about Henderson County. He has a Master of English from the University of Delaware, and has worked a lot of interesting jobs. He taught high school English in Baltimore City Public Schools, worked as a library assistant at the Winterthur Library and Museum, as a state correction officer, a buyer for Amazon, a grant writer, and operations manager for a fly fishing manufacturer. In his spare time, he likes to read and enjoys hiking and cooking over a campfire with his wife whenever it's not raining in Brevard.

Haley Clarke, Library Assistant

Haley Clarke is our new part-time Library Assistant in the Circulation Department at the Main Library. Haley grew up in Hendersonville, attended Hendersonville High School, received her undergraduate degree in literature from UNC Asheville, and is currently pursuing a Master of Library Science from North Carolina Central University. She and her fiancé are slowly restoring a 1950s bungalow where they live with a cocker spaniel named Theodore and a pet rabbit. Her favorite recent reads are Circe by Madeline Miller and Everything I Never Told You by Celeste Ng.

BRANCHING OUT INTO THE COMMUNITY!

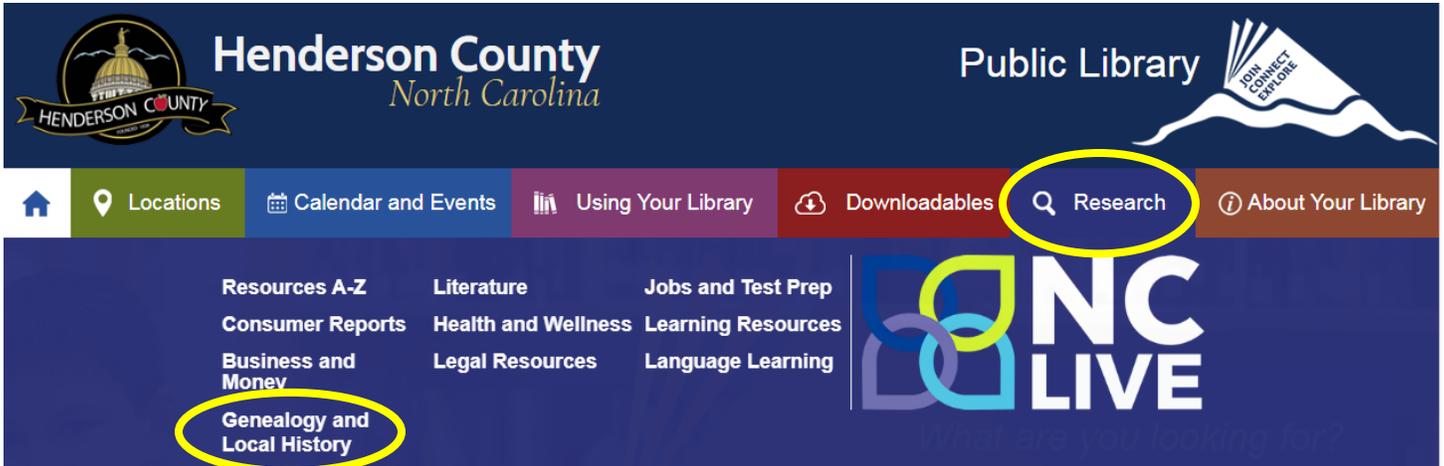

Etowah Heritage Day was held at the Etowah Library on October 19, 2019.

The Fletcher Library joined in the fun at the Fletcher Parks and Recreation's Halloween Carnival on October 26, 2019.

LIBRARY UPDATES REFERENCE RESOURCES PAGE AND ADDS NEW GENEALOGY AND LOCAL HISTORY WEBPAGE

In November the library updated its Research menu on the library website. This menu is located along the top of the library website and is intended to help patrons find popular resources and topics quickly and easily. It includes individual resources such as Consumer Reports, resources by topics such as legal and health information, as well as an A-Z listing of all the library research and reference resources.

The Genealogy and Local History webpage, located under this menu, replaces the old Genealogy webpage and includes new local history resources not previously found on the library's website. "We wanted to make heavily used resources available while also highlighting resources that were previously inaccessible to the public," says Reference Librarian Mark Burdette. This includes lists of architectural drawings and microfilm containing newspapers, census, and county records. Patrons will also find an annotated bibliography of local history titles and links to important local resources such as WHKP recordings and Henderson County resources held at the North Carolina Digital Heritage Center. This information can be reached by going to the Research tab on the library's main page and clicking the Genealogy and Local History link. <https://hendersonpl.libguides.com/GenealogyLocalHist>

HISTORIC YEARBOOKS AVAILABLE ONLINE

Yearbooks from Hendersonville High School and Ninth Avenue School are now available online at the North Carolina Digital Heritage Center. Reference Librarian Mark Burdette worked with the Henderson County Genealogical and Historical Society and the Ninth Avenue Alumni group to assemble yearbooks from each school and loan them to the North Carolina Digital Heritage Center for digitization. Ninth Avenue School annuals from 1950-1965 were digitized along with Hendersonville High annuals from 1916 and 1948-1963, making valuable historical and genealogical resources available to the public for free. The library and Digital Heritage Center intend to continue the digitization project going forward.

The yearbooks can be freely accessed at the North Carolina Digital Heritage Center website: digitalnc.org

REGIONAL ROUNDUP

In this column we feature books and authors with regional appeal to Western North Carolina and more broadly, with a strong sense of place in the Southeast. Place any of these on hold at the library through the NC Cardinal catalog.

In serial mysteries and thrillers, Julia Keller's West Virginia series featuring a female DA continues with The Cold Way Home, and J.D. Rhoades' Jack Keller is back in North Carolina in a new hard boiled mystery called Won't Back Down. In Hank Early's Echoes of the Fall, the southern gothic series follows North Georgia small town cop Earl Marcus, a long-buried missing persons case is uncovered in Cold Woods by Karen Katchur, and a ghostly figure appears to be digging a tunnel through the mountains in Jess Montgomery's The Hollows. The novella Exit Fee by blockbuster thriller author Brad Taylor takes place in Charleston, and another popular Charleston writer Karen White has a ghostly holiday novel with The Christmas Spirits on Tradd Street.

For cozy titles, Amy Patricia Meade's The Garden Club Murder is the sequel to last year's literary caterer Tish Tarragon mystery Cookin' The Books. Ellen Crosby continues her wine country mysteries with The Angels' Share. For stories about young mothers, look for local author Meagan Lucas' new book Songbirds and Stray Dogs, set in Western North Carolina, or Holding on to Nothing by Elizabeth Chiles Shelburne, about a girl thwarted trying to leave her small town in Tennessee. If you like books about families and social issues like Jodi Picoult, Invisible as Air by Zoe Fishman deals with depression and addiction after a mother loses a child. A Southern family history told through artifacts called The Last List of Miss Judith Kratt by Andrea Bobotis is a new debut, and for a family saga in the vein of Pat Conroy, try John Russell's All the Right Circles, about power and prestige in the South.

In romance, Liz Johnson's Georgia Coast Romance sequel features pirate tours in A Glitter of Gold. If you're looking for clean romantic suspense like Dee Henderson, Dani Pettrey's Coastal Guardians series kicks off with The Killing Tide. For Christian historical fiction, try the Daughters of the Mayflower series title The Rebel Bride by Shannon McNear about a Civil War nurse in Tennessee, and Ted Dekker has a new book about a secretive religious community in a hidden valley holding off the apocalypse called The Girl Behind the Red Rope.

For nonfiction and memoir, Appalachian documentarian Charles D. Thompson Jr. writes about the forces squeezing family farms in Virginia in Going Over Home, and a revised edition of The Foxfire Book of Appalachian Cookery by T. J. Smith is now available. A couple local history titles specific to Henderson County include the Guide to Antebellum Flat Rock by C. Phillip Elliott and Gun Fights, Dam Sites, and Water Rights by James E. Brittain. For a true crime story, The Third Rainbow Girl by Emma Copley Eisenberg covers a double murder in early twentieth-century West Virginia. Mixing family and North Carolina history, Memoir of a Race Traitor by Mab Segrest was recently republished, and Late Migrations by Margaret Renkl is a regional memoir connecting a tribute to aging parents to the natural world of Alabama and Tennessee.

My literary top picks include a folk horror novel set in the North Carolina woods called The Twisted Ones by T. Kingfisher, and a novel about herbalists of the North Georgia mountains by Tim Westover called The Winter Sisters. A familiar tale about people finding their place in a larger narrative of modernization and displacement, a new book by Mark Barr called Watershed chronicles the changes that electricity brought to a Tennessee community with the damming of a river valley. Lastly, the collected stories of Southern cult fiction writer Larry Brown was published with the title Tiny Love. Looking ahead to forthcoming popular fiction, local favorite Diane Chamberlain describes the layers of a piece of North Carolina public art dating back to the 1940s in Big Lies in a Small Town.

Thanks for reading!

The "HCPL To Go" Library Mobile App Service Has Ended

This standalone app limited catalog searches to titles owned by Henderson County libraries, thereby leaving out the 6+ million items available throughout the NC Cardinal Consortium. Users who were accustomed to utilizing this app will be better served using the library's new mobile friendly and easy to navigate website.

For steps on adding the library website to the home screen on your mobile device go to the library's homepage, open the 'Using Your Library' tab, and click 'My Account'. Follow the step-by-step instructions for accessing the same features found on the app.

NEW STATUE AT MILLS RIVER

A new bronze statue of a girl reading sits outside the Mills River Library. The "Reading Reflections" statue was commissioned by a Mills River patron who donated funds for a companion piece to the library's existing "Spellbound" statue of a boy reading.

UPCOMING BOOK CLUB MEETINGS

Did you know the Etowah Library has a collection of kits for book clubs? Kits include 10 paperback copies of a book club pick in a special bag that can be picked up and returned to any Henderson County library. They are able to be reserved up to 3 months in advance by calling the Etowah Library at 891-6577. The book group leader will check out the whole kit to distribute copies to their members, and library staff can adjust the due date until after your next discussion. Details and a current list of titles is available at the Book Club Hub page, hendersonpl.libguides.com/bookclubhub or on NC Cardinal with a keyword search for "book club kit."

On January 23rd, a new Library Book Club is kicking off at the Main Library with a discussion of If the Creek Don't Rise by Leah Weiss. We will discuss this North Carolina book and pick titles for our subsequent meetings.

There will be a daytime (2pm) and an evening (6pm) discussion to gauge which time works best for anyone who is interested. Call the library at 697-4725 to place a hold on the book.

In addition, the next meeting of the Main Library Teen Book Club will be Thursday, January 16th at 4pm. The Teen Book Club is for grades 9-12. Come by the Main Library Youth Services Desk to register and get your copy of the book, Long May She Reign by Rhiannon Thomas.

TEACHING BEYOND LIBRARY WALLS

As an instructional librarian I have taught many computer classes in the library. Recently, I have been given the opportunity to take these classes out into the community. Two sites we now offer computer classes at are the Goodwill Career Connections and the Sammy Williams Center, both in Hendersonville.

In January, a new series of classes will begin at both sites. The classes at Goodwill will focus on the computer skills job seekers need, such as filling out online job applications, while classes at the Sammy Williams Center will cover computer basics. Classes at Goodwill are open to the public for up to 10 people while classes at the Sammy Williams Center are for those who attend the program there. Schedules for both sites will be confirmed in late December.

We continue to offer computer and technology programs at several of the library branches. These offerings can be found on our online calendar under the Calendar and Events tab on the library's website.

Instructional Librarian

THE FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY

The Friends play an important role in the community by supporting all six branches of the library. Even though we are an all-volunteer organization, we raise about $100,000 a year, mostly from our book sales in May and September.

Between January and September of 2019, we sponsored 128 programs and purchased 1,000 books for the library. We also bought tablets, AV items, materials for the Craft Club, and furniture and equipment such as chairs, security cameras, and shelf units.

A Friends volunteer helps prepare for the book sale.

Our organization continues to grow. We currently have almost 1,500 members. With 400 new members in 2019, we have increased our total membership by 39 percent compared to the year before.

Our 100 dedicated volunteers work year-round to process donated books and other materials and then help at the book sales. We always need more members and volunteers. Learn more at our website: fotl.info
